The acceptance of a student into supervised study is dependent on the following:

- Supervised Study operates on a "first come, first served" basis with priority given to exam years. We will endeavour to accommodate all students but we cannot guarantee a place for each applicant.
- Students are expected to follow normal school rules and procedures at all times in supervised study. Failure to behave appropriately or cooperate with the supervising teacher may result in a student being permanently removed from further study sessions without reimbursement.
- Student may not leave a study session early without written consent from a parent/guardian. If an enrolled student is not present during the study session, St. Paul's College does not accept responsibility for his safety.

I wish my son to take part in Supervised Study. I accept the conditions stated above.
